

Bradley Seitz has over twenty years of experience in corporate travel management. In his current position as President and Chief Executive Officer for Topaz International, he has the unique role of assessing both the corporate side and the supplier side of travel, as an independent third party. He began his corporate travel career at Xerox Corporation in the Corporate Travel Department, and then moved to management roles at Carlson Wagonlit Travel and Rosenbluth International.

Brad is also currently a professor of Business at the University of Southern Maine, teaching entrepreneurship and marketing. He has an undergraduate degree in Finance from Suffolk University in Boston, and a Masters in Business Administration from Babson College. He has received Management Certificates from the Carlson Executive Program at the University of Minnesota and the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. He has been named one of the top 100 speakers in America.

He served as the treasurer of the Association for Corporate Travel Executives for four years and is also an active member of the Global Business Travel Association. Brad and Topaz International have been seen in a wide variety of news media, including the Wall Street Journal, Financial Times, Business Travel News, Executive Travel, New York Times, USA Today and National Public Radio. Topaz International has been in business for 35 years and operates in over 80 countries worldwide.

He lives in Maine with his wife of 25 years, and has three children that are usually spread around the globe in various locations pursuing their dreams.